WS Gresham House UK Multi Cap Income Fund

Factsheet commentary – October 2023

Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Portfolio investments in smaller companies typically involve a higher degree of risk. Capital at risk. Extracted portfolio performance is not necessarily indicative of the performance of the fund. Not to be construed as investment advice or a recommendation. Overview

Market conditions were challenging in October; the FTSE 350 fell 2.9% whilst the AIM All Share Index declined 5.3%. Despite further evidence of UK disinflation and the Fed pausing US rate hikes, the geopolitical backdrop in the Middle East has intensified global uncertainty and dampened equity performance. We note, however, another strong month of M&A activity which has further exposed how UK stocks across various sectors are trading at discounted valuations relative to precedent transactions.

We are confident in the fundamentals and sustainable income qualities of our portfolio despite volatile markets and global uncertainty. We believe our holdings possess high-quality financial characteristics, offer differentiated propositions within structurally growing markets, and are led by high-quality management teams. These factors underpin the ability of our companies to grow earnings, generate cash, and pay increasing and well-covered dividends throughout the cycle.

Newsflow across the portfolio was mainly positive in October as several companies announced strong trading updates and financial results. During the year-to-date, c.90% of company updates in the fund have been in-line or positive versus market expectations.

Our pipeline remained robust in October as we continue to see opportunities to invest in companies with high-quality fundamentals and sustainable income potential at attractive entry points.

Performance[1]

Performance in the WS Gresham House UK Multi Cap Income Fund decreased by 4.58% during the month, marginally underperforming the IA UK Equity Income sector which increased by 4.52% and the FTSE All-Share Index which decreased by 4.09%.[2]

Key positive contributions came from The Property Franchise Group (+15%) on no specific newsflow; Moneysupermarket (+8%), following a well-received trading update, reiterating full-year guidance; and XPS Pensions Group (+4%), as a positive trading update led to another round of upgrades to earnings forecasts.

The largest detractors to performance were Randall & Quilter (-78%) following the proposed sale of the company's Program Management business at a valuation below market expectations; and Ricardo (-13%), on no specific news.

Portfolio activity

We made no new investments during the period.

We made several, selective follow-on investments during the period, upweighting in Integrafin, a leading player in the UK adviser platform market. The manager believes this business trades at an attractive valuation, operates in a structurally growing market, and possesses high-quality financial characteristics aligned with our sustainable income criteria. We also added to our position in Alpha FMC, a challenger consultancy firm primarily focused on financial services, which continues to execute on its growth strategy and demonstrate resilience, despite broader market headwinds.

The fund made two full exits during the period; from EMIS Group following its takeover by US multinational healthcare group, UnitedHealth; and from DWF Group following its takeover by private equity firm, Inflexion.

Outlook

Additional disinflationary datapoints give us some confidence in the consistency of the trend for the remainder of 2023. However, the evolving geopolitical situation in the Middle East has contributed to another iteration of short-term volatility in the UK equity market. While this creates mispricing and investment opportunities, we see clear correlation between subdued sentiment and broader macroeconomic and geopolitical uncertainty.

Nevertheless, we retain high conviction in the resilient fundamentals of our portfolio companies and their ability to grow and deliver sustainable income throughout the cycle. Our private equity approach to public markets, conducting due diligence through an extensive and variegated specialist network, helps us to stay ahead of the curve in our monitoring of new risks and opportunities.

We expect M&A activity to continue at elevated levels for the remainder of the year as private equity buyers look to compensate for higher interest costs by capitalising on steep discounts across UK public markets. Eventually, we think investors must consider the growing evidence of valuation asymmetry between public and private markets and start to bridge the arbitrage.
