Performance

In September 2024, the WS Gresham House UK Smaller Companies Fund decreased by 2.8%, outperforming the IA UK Smaller Companies sector which decreased by 3.4%. Positive contributors included Learning Technologies Group (+0.8% CTR) following an informal takeover offer by General Atlantic at 100p, a c.25% premium to the prior day closing share price; Team17 Group (+0.3% CTR) as interim results evidenced strong organic growth, improved cost control, and strategic re-focus after last year's profit warning; and Gamma Communications (+0.3% CTR) following impressive interim results characterised by accelerated EBITDA growth and management's full-year guidance shifting to the top-end of market consensus. Key detractors during the period included Next Fifteen Communications (-1.1% CTR) following a profit warning driven by the loss of a material contract and weak customer spending patterns; Franchise Brands (-0.6% CTR) despite interim results in-line with market expectations; and Fintel (-0.6% CTR) despite a robust trading update which disclosed 6% growth in core software-as-a-service (SaaS) revenues and reiterated full-year market guidance.

Portfolio activity

There was one new investment in September into Costain Group, a leading UK infrastructure engineering and consultancy services provider which is positioned to benefit from UK infrastructure expenditure and which the Manager believes trades at a significant discount to intrinsic value.

The team however made several follow-on investments including into Team 17 Group, an independent video game developer and publisher which has a strong market position, with earnings underpinned by a resilient back catalogue of durable franchises, which continues to trade at an attractive valuation; Impax Asset Management, a specialist sustainable investment manager led by a high-quality team, supported by long-term secular demand drivers, which has attractive financial characteristics, and trades at an attractive entry valuation due to transitory flow pressures which appear to be abating; and Trustpilot, a technology business offering free and paid services to companies across its unique consumer-review platform, with significant future growth potential across its scalable software-as-a-service model.

The Fund made one full exit during the period, from Ascential following its completed acquisition by major UK-listed events business, Informa plc.

1. Fund statistics definitions

Volatility is a statistical measurement that, when applied to an investment fund, expresses its volatility, or risk. It shows how widely a range of returns varied from the fund's average return over a particular period.

Alpha is a measure of a fund's over-or-underperformance in comparison to the benchmark of the fund. Alpha represents the extra value the manager's activities have contributed, the greater the alpha, the greater the outperformance.

Beta is a statistical estimate of a fund's volatility in comparison to its benchmark. It depicts how sensitive the fund is to movements in the section of the market that comprises the benchmark.

Sharpe is the level of a fund's return over and above the return of a notional risk-free investment, such as cash or government bonds. The difference in returns is then divided by the fund's standard deviation (volatility). This is an indication of the amount of excess return generated per unit of risk. In general it is considered that the higher the Sharpe ratio, the better.

Information ratio is a risk-adjusted measure of actively managed fund performance. It assesses the degree to which a manager uses skill and knowledge to enhance the fund returns. The higher the information ratio, the better. It is generally considered that a figure of 0.5 reflects a good performance, 0.75 very good, and 1 outstanding.

Capital at risk. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. Portfolio investments in smaller companies typically involve a higher degree of risk. Charts and graphs are provided for illustrative purposes only as there is no official benchmark for this fund.
